AOLP HONORS JACK MILLER WITH INDUSTRY ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

HARRISBURG, PA- Last month, the Association of Outdoor Lighting Professionals (AOLP) hosted its 2014 Annual Conference & Expo in San Diego, California. The conference featured two certification training sessions, as well as numerous educational speakers and seminars. On February 20, 2014, AOLP held its annual Awards Dinner to honor professional excellence in outdoor lighting design. During the evening, AOLP presented the 2014 Industry Achievement Award for leadership and pioneering efforts in the outdoor lighting industry to Jack Miller, CLVLT. Miller humbly accepted the award and told the crowd how grateful he was to be recognized.

Who is Jack Miller?

- Miller graduated in 1973 from Kent State University.
- In 1976, he purchased Industrial Electric – Lighting and Electrical Supplies Retail Store.
- The store was so successful; he opened a second location in 1985.
- Miller sold Industrial Electric in 1989 and went to work for Kichler Lighting as the landscape lighting general manager in 1991.
- Miller was hired to lead Kichler's efforts to get into the landscape lighting business.
- His initial team consisted of one lighting designer and an engineering drafter, with some additional help coming from Kichler's marketing manager.
- Over his 23+ years with Kichler, Miller has presented over 1,000 seminars on landscape lighting in North America and around the world, including a presentation to 400+ contractors at an event in Israel that was simultaneously delivered in English and Hebrew.
- Miller is currently the Director of Product Development for all of Kichler's engineered products, including landscape lighting. He has helped to develop most of their line of products and is a strong believer in doing things by the book.
- Miller has been very involved with AOLP almost since its inception.
- He was part of the original team who developed the CLVLT exam and certification for AOLP.

Miller's strong advocacy and continual support for the advancement of the lighting profession and AOLP is exactly why he is this year's recipient of AOLP's highest honor, the Industry Achievement Award.
